

JOHN W. DAVIS DENOUNCES KU KLUX KLAN BY NAME IN FIGHTING SPEECH TO NEW JERSEY DEMOCRACY

Mob Storms Court To Hear Speech of Darrow

JUDGE IS FORCED TO SUSPEND TRIAL IN DEMONSTRATION

Women Faint, Men Battle Each Other To Get Inside Room for Final Plea for Franks Slayers.

POWERFUL SPEECH IS MADE FOR THEM

Judge and Audience Hang on Words as Veteran Calls Murder Only Senseless Act of Boys.

Chicago, August 22.—Mobs lusting for thrills—the same thrill-hungry hordes that day after day jammed into the courtroom, or tried vainly to force their way in—cast aside all restraint Friday and stopped the hearing as Clarence S. Darrow, chief defense counsel, commenced a remarkable plea intended to save Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb from hanging.

While the two youthful murderers of 14-year-old Robert Franks cringed in fear, not knowing what the disturbance going on just outside the courtroom might portend, men and women—with all pretense, all ordinary courtesy, all conventions—laid aside, fought the police and deputy sheriffs, trampled on each other, and sought to invade the court.

Inside, Justice John R. Caverly, tried vainly to quell the tumult of conversation that arose. Finally, in the face of a growing menace from without, the judge suspended the proceedings and Darrow stopped speaking. Caverly left the courtroom.

Riot Call Issued.

With the sensation-hungry throngs battling an inadequate force of guards inside and outside the courthouse, it was impossible to continue proceedings. Women fainted, men punched each other, police and deputy sheriffs were thrown back and beaten.

Caverly issued a call for police reserves and finally, when after 20 minutes the riot still was going on, a riot call was issued from police headquarters that brought a detachment of 70 policemen, including 20 mounted officers, to the building.

While the mounted police rode through the throngs besieging the entrance to the court building, other police, inside, drove out the fighting, milling crowd and restored order. Thirty-five minutes after Justice Caverly originally had opened court for the afternoon session, quiet had been restored and the court room again became a quiet, orderly place where the fate of two murderers was being decided. For the first time during the Franks case, a case with dangerous possibilities, the mob spirit had broken out from Darrow finally commenced his plea for mercy.

Seeks to Minimize Crime.

Darrow, in his speech, sought to minimize the crime. He swayed the court room with flights of oratory, he made some of his hearers weep, held those within reach of his voice spell-

Darrow To Keep Wearing Galluses As Omen of Luck

Sends Word to Leopold He Will Not Change Them for Belt.

Chicago, August 22.—Clarence S. Darrow will continue to wear the galluses that have been remarked upon more frequently than any other article of his apparel since he has been pleading for the lives of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, murderers of young Robert Franks.

Informed late today that more than a pair of baggy trousers were hanging on his suspenders, since Leopold regarded them as a good omen, the famous lawyer sent his young client word that he would not change them for a belt.

"Don't let him do that," Leopold exclaimed when he heard the rumor of the change. "I may be overly superstitious, but I have always had a feeling that as long as Mr. Darrow was strutting on those old suspenders, everything was all right. If he takes them off in favor of a belt, I am afraid it will mean bad luck for the defense."

"Tell him the old suspenders will be on the job until Judge Caverly hands down his decision, and probably for some years afterwards," said Mr. Darrow.

NO TRACES FOUND OF ITALIAN PILOT WITH U. S. FLIERS

Scout Planes, Sent Out To Locate Lieutenant Locatelli, Forced To Return Because of Fog.

LITTLE APPREHENSION IS FELT FOR SAFETY

Observers Believe Airman Made Landing at Some Fjord on West Greenland Coast.

Believe Missing Flier Gone To Newfoundland

Reykjavik, Iceland, August 22.—It is believed here that Lieutenant Locatelli, the missing Italian aviator, may have proceeded to Belle Island, Newfoundland. Locatelli had faith in his long-distance abilities of his plane, and when he became separated from the Americans, it is thought he may have decided to make a drive for the other side of the Atlantic.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reykjavik, August 22.—Scout planes which were dispatched today from the American warship patrolling the north Atlantic to look for Lieutenant Locatelli, Italian aviator who left here with the American fliers yesterday, but failed to arrive at Fredericksdal, Greenland, were forced down by dense fog to return to their mother ships this evening without having found any trace of the missing aviator.

This was learned in a message received here tonight from the Danish supply ship Gertrude Rask, which is at Angmagssalik on the northeast coast of Greenland.

Little Apprehension Felt.

Although very little news was received from Greenland today, it is believed that there is no cause for alarm as to the fate of the Italian flier, who has not yet been heard from since he was sighted by the American vessels during the earlier stage of the American fliers' hop from Iceland to Greenland.

Since yesterday, it is understood that the weather off the Greenland coast has been good, the winds favorable and the seas smooth, and it is believed most likely that Lieutenant Locatelli made a landing at one of the fjords between Fredericksdal and Ivigtut on the west coast of Greenland.

The Gertrude Rask, which took up her station at Angmagssalik when it was expected the aviator would fly to that point, reported that she was clear of ice and that she expected to arrive here by Monday.

ICE-INFESTED WATERS SEARCHED FOR ITALIAN.

Washington, August 22.—Ice-infested waters of the north Atlantic are being searched for the lost Italian aviator, Lieut. Locatelli, who hopped off from Iceland Thursday with the two American round-the-world fliers, but failed to land at Greenland. Four airplanes from the cruisers will join in the search as soon as the fog lifts. The American cruisers Richmond,

Scientists Reach Climax Friday Night In Search To Learn Truth About Mars

San Francisco, Cal., August 22.—The most eminent astronomers in the United States and Canada are endeavoring to solve a fascinating mystery. They are looking across space into infinity and listening to the music of the spheres.

The mystery is the one centering on whether the earth has a neighbor in the planet Mars on which life exists or may exist.

And if it does have such a neighbor, is that neighbor calling to the earth—inviting a bit of gossip over the back fence?

Scientists have little hope of solving the mystery now. Certainly it cannot be solved in a night.

Yet they strained their eyes and ears, and with nerves taught, they reached out into the universe hoping they would be able to grasp evidence to be added to that gathered in years of study, and later to be added again to what future generations may learn and, in the end, some day to answer the question.

Friday night was the climax of the search of the "truth about Mars" to date. Early in the evening, the planet and the earth were "in opposition," as the astronomers said. They swung along neck and neck in their race around the sun, following an almost parallel course and came nearer together than they have been for 100 years.

Mars turned toward the earth the so-called "desert region," known as the lake of the sun, which astronomers now say may be vegetation.

It was noon on Mars as it came into "opposition" with the earth.

The Martian "canals," long a subject of study, presented themselves in such a way that indications that they are being extended may be confirmed.

10-YEAR-OLD BOY, VICTIM OF AUTO, DYING AT GRADY

Driver, Who Is Held Without Bond, Declares Accident Unavoidable; Mrs. Girardeau Injured.

With 10-year-old Phillip Hunton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hunton, 22 McMillan street, at the point of death in Grady hospital from a fractured skull which he received Friday when knocked down by an automobile in Sixth street, near McMillan street, police report shows that auto mishaps during the day were responsible for three additional victims.

Mrs. C. H. Girardeau, wife of a well-known real estate dealer, was struck down as she crossed Broad street, on Marietta street, shortly after 10 o'clock Friday morning. The automobile was operated by W. C. Williams, 263 East Lake road, who was arrested under a charge of reckless driving, his case being set for trial August 28.

Driver Under Arrest.

The driver of the car that injured young Hunton was R. A. Tolbert, of Austell, Ga., who is being detained by Call Officers W. A. Goode and W. F. Bullard without bond, pending the outcome of the youth's injuries.

In the car with Tolbert was A. L. Jeffries, of Mableton. Both claimed the boy ran suddenly into the street from behind a buggy, and that the accident was unavoidable.

Doctors at the hospital stated that the victim is suffering from concussion of the brain, and that his skull probably is fractured. He also was severely bruised and cut about the body.

Hitch Reported In City School Finance Plans

Deferred Payment Arrangement Declared Illegal by Lawyer.

A hitch was threatened Friday in the board of education plan for financing schools through this year by buying equipment on the deferred payment plan when Carl F. Hutcheson, attorney for the Federal Steel Fixture company, notified the board's purchasing committee that the proposed contract for purchase of $5,000 worth of steel lockers is illegal.

The question will be threshed out at a special meeting of the board called for Monday afternoon by John T. Hancock, president.

FOUR BOUND OVER FOLLOWING ATTACK ON PROH OFFICERS

Defendants Charged With Assault With Deadly Weapons on Agents Aldred and Cobb.

Four men, charged with attacking and firing upon a squad of prohibition enforcement agents, working under Fred D. Dismuke, state prohibition director, while they were investigating a notorious section of Peters street Thursday night, were bound over to a federal grand jury under heavy bonds Friday afternoon when arraigned before United States Commissioner W. Colquitt Carter.

The men, C. L. Wray, O. C. Gosssett, Monroe Bailey, and a negro, Eugene Nichols, who were assessed bonds ranging from $1,000 to $2,500, were brought before Commissioner Carter on a government warrant charging assault with deadly weapons upon Federal Prohibition Agents Grady Cobb and W. C. Aldred.

Will Blame Officers.

The defense, it was intimated, following the hearing, will endeavor to prove that the officers attacked the accused men without provocation.

The officers said that they had been fired upon after first being attacked as they were walking down Peters street, looking for a gang of bootleggers. They testified that they were first accosted by a man who ran from a store and asked them "How much do you want?" Realizing, they declared, that the man knew that they were in government employ, they walked on, paying no attention to his question.

Later they said that they became separated when Cobb walked up on one side of the street and his companion took the other. They walked in this manner, it was asserted at the hearing, until they approached an automobile loaded with men. One of them, Aldred declared, got out of the

DAVIS, LA FOLLETTE PLACE KLAN ISSUE UP TO PRESIDENT

Democratic Nominee Invites Coolidge To Remove Religious Issue From Fall Campaign.

IF HE KEEPS SILENT, KLAN MAY BE ISSUE

Courage Required of Coolidge To Take Stand as Klan Is Most Powerful in G. O. P. States.

Washington, August 22.—Davis and La Follette have put the klan issue up to President Coolidge.

Following the example set recently by Senator La Follette, Davis, in his Searight speech, denounced the order by name, declared it has no place in a national campaign, and invited Coolidge to join him and thus remove this troublesome and irrelevant question from national politics.

Coolidge probably will do so in the very near future, either in his address to the Holy Name society here early in September, or in an open letter.

He made a veiled criticism in his acceptance speech, but did not mention the klan as La Follette and Davis have done. Otherwise, he said essentially the same thing—he lamented appeals to religious bigotry and racial prejudice. He has been busy writing letters to negroes lately, assuring them that he wants a square deal for the black race. It only remains now for him to drive his viewpoint home by mentioning the klan specifically.

Would Eliminate Issue.

With all three candidates definitely opposed to the klan, it would cease to be a disturbing factor in the national campaign. The spell of the masked order, which has driven hundreds of timid politicians to the storm cellars, would be broken. Danger of dragging in heated religious arguments would be averted.

If Coolidge should maintain his silence, the klan question is certain to snarl up the presidential contest. It not only would precipitate a humiliating spectacle, but it would obscure the real issues of honesty in government, efficiency, the protective as against the revenue tariff, the advisability of government ownership.

CONFIDENCE AGAIN VOTED IN HERRIOT

Chamber of Deputies Defeats, 305 to 209, Motion of Opposition Forces to Adjourn Session.

BY JOHN O'BRIEN.

Paris, August 22.—Premier Herriot received what was tantamount to a vote of confidence early Saturday morning when the chamber of deputies, by a vote of 305 to 209, defeated a motion by the opposition which called for an adjournment.

The motion came after a day of attacks on the European policies of ex-Premier Poincare, directed by the socialist leader, Leon Blum. By various interpellations relating to the London conference, Blum sought to show the wisdom of Herriot's policy and to demonstrate that Poincare's tactics had been the chief obstruction to the restoration of peace on the continent. Blum declared it was necessary to jettison Poincare's program in order to reach an agreement on the Dawes plan.

This is Herriot's second vote of confidence in two days. On Thursday, the chamber rejected an opposition motion to postpone debate on the Dawes plan until it was considered by the foreign committee of the chamber. With this vote of confidence Saturday morning, Herriot is now considered to have won certain victory for the Dawes protocols.

G. O. P. IS ATTACKED FROM MANY ANGLES

Denunciation of Klan Brings Great Response; Wants the Question Removed From Debate.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Searight, N. J., August 22.—The Ku Klux Klan was denounced by John W. Davis, the democratic presidential candidate.

In a fighting address to the democracy of New Jersey, Mr. Davis condemned that and any other organization raising the standard of racial and religious prejudice.

Then he called upon President Coolidge, as the standard bearer of the republican party, to join him by "some explicit declaration" in "entirely removing this topic from the field of political debate."

In naming the klan in this, the second address of his campaign, the democratic nominee again brought into the open an issue which rent the democratic national convention which nominated him and led to the memorable Saturday night battle in Madison Square Garden which culminated in a record vote and a majority of four against denunciation of the klan by name in the party platform.

Having discussed it rather fully in his acceptance address, Mr. Davis apparently did not intend to refer to it again in his address here. He told his audience that, since his arrival here from New York last night, he had been asked by more than one person as to the views he entertained toward the klan. Decision to state his position clearly, once and for all, as he put it, is understood to have crystallized at a conference which Mr. Davis had last night with several party leaders at the home of Governor Siler. Besides the governor, those reported to have participated included Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, democratic national committeeman from that state; Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to President Wilson, and Thomas J. Spelly, director of the eastern headquarters of the national campaign organization.

Mr. Davis voiced his declaration regarding the klan at the conclusion of a general address in which he vigorously scored the republican party on the record of the scandals disclosed at Washington and pointed out the chief points on which the two parties differ.

Statement Was Unexpected.

Apparently few in the audience looked for such a declaration. When the nominee, with outburst jaw and vigorous gesture, first named the klan, there was a hush. But it was only for a moment.

GRESS NOW COMES TO NEWLYWEDS' AID

After further consulting the law bearing on the new marriage act dispute, Assistant Attorney General T. R. Gress stated Friday that he had changed his opinion on the subject, and was now inclined to believe all marriages legal in cases where licenses were issued after August 15. If such licenses were granted in good faith and the contracting parties acted in good faith.

When Secretary of State S. G. McLenon, some days ago questioned the legality of marriages performed when licenses were issued after the governor signed the new marriage law, Mr. Gress upheld the opinion of Secretary McLenon, reversing his opinion on the subject Friday.

The new law requires all persons in Georgia contemplating marriage, to notify the ordinary five days before the license is issued. The law is dispensed with in cases when the bride's parent or legal guardian gives his or her written consent to the ordinary.

Mr. Gress pointed out that Georgia courts have held on several occasions that marriages contracted on illegal licenses are entirely valid, provided the parties acted in good faith.

LOS ANGELES MAN FOUND BEHEADED

Los Angeles, Calif., August 22.—The headless body of a man was found today in the willows of a creek bed near Whittier, near here. Clothing indicated it might be that of Henry Carpenter, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The suit, bearing that name, with a "number 38," was made by the Interstate Tailors, of Cincinnati.

Tailors Identify Carpenter. Cincinnati, August 22.—Officials of the Interstate Tailors, of Cincinnati, today expressed the belief that a man, believed to be Henry Carpenter, of Cincinnati, was, in fact, a Los Angeles man of that name. The man's body was found beheaded near Whittier.

They asserted that a linen tag usually sewed in the watch pocket of the trousers might give investigating officers the number under which the name of the man is recorded in the local offices of the company. They added that a similar tag was in the inside pocket of the coat and vest.

An investigation of the records of the local company revealed that the suit of clothes had been sold to Carpenter in May, 1924, at which time he informed them of his Los Angeles address.

automobile and approached him. This move, it was stated, was followed by a concerted attack on the part of all occupants of the automobile. One of the men, Aldred stated, caught him about the waist and held him so that he could not reach for his gun. The other men in the crowd, he said, then ran towards Cobb.

Shooting Follows.
Shooting, he said, followed, and he heard Cobb screaming for him to shoot. Finally the man holding him, he stated, fell to the ground, saying that he had a broken hip. On being freed, Aldred declared he then went in search for his partner.

When he returned he found the man he thought wounded had disappeared. Aldred, for the defense attempted to draw an admission that they had struck the first blow.

The testimony of Cobb corroborated in practically every detail the story told by Agent Aldred. He added he saw Gossett with a gun and stated that he believed that he had fired at him (Cobb). He also declared the negro had advanced upon him with a knife.

Gossett testified that he did not own a gun and said that he did not fire upon the officers.

The warrant on which the hearing was heard was sworn out Friday morning by Agent Cobb. The four men were taken into custody Thursday night.

DAVIS, LA FOLLETTE PLACE KLAN ISSUE

of railroads and other utilities, the wisdom of checking the absolute powers of the supreme court—all questions which strike at the real problems of government.

Would Require Courage.
It will require courage for Coolidge to attack the Klan openly. It has required courage for La Follette to speak and for Davis, too. For the Klan, once confined to solidly democratic territory, has spread all over the middle west and now is strongest perhaps in republican states like Indiana. It is influential in Ohio and Illinois and in Kansas, and to a lesser extent in other states normally republican.

La Follette, the first to strike at the masked order, risked alienating large blocks of farmer votes in the middle west. Many labor groups contain a large Klan membership. Of course, there are compensations for him, as for all other candidates in the convention. Davis, too, disposes great Catholic vote, and the vote of the large mass of people who do not belong to or sympathize with the Klan.

Because of its secret nature, the exact membership of the Klan is unknown and politicians, always a timid lot, may be unduly fearful of its power. Yet it has taken over the republican party in Indiana and has demonstrated its power unquestionably in other states.

Davis Displays Boldness.
In view of the fact that the Klan fight nearly wrecked the democratic convention, Davis, too, disposes great boldness in striking out without reservation on this issue. The party was so evenly divided at the convention that only by one vote was the attempt to name the Klan specifically in the platform beaten. The cosmopolitan north and east and the rural west and south have split the party into two bitter factions.

Davis' declaration does not serve to heal that breach. Yet it will make him stronger in many of the large eastern states which he needs. Over, in many southern states, the Klan appears to be losing its influence. In Texas, for instance, the leading politicians have united behind Mrs. Ferguson and against Judge Robertson, admitted Klan candidate in the gubernatorial fight.

Coolidge also has a divided party on his hands. The republican convention, well controlled, avoided raising the issue. But it was there nevertheless. If the president looks at the matter from the point of view of votes alone, he must weigh the large republican Klan vote in states like Indiana against that of the negroes, who are threatening to bolt and who could wipe out republican majorities in some states.

Have Welfare at Heart.
But all three candidates are men who have the welfare of the country deeply at heart and it is safe to say that in the long silent hours of thought, which they have given to this problem, they have been moved by other more important considerations than the number of votes that would be affected.

To take a pronounced stand against a large block of organized citizens, who undoubtedly are giving their votes as patriotic as those of their opponents, requires great personal courage. Members of the Klan are, on the whole, decent, law-abiding, and as sincere and firm in their convictions as the pilgrims who undertook the hardy adventure to America because of their religious convictions. They believe they are right, and to send them out for attack is going to wound them deeply.

But this is an issue which conscience, rather than political expediency, undoubtedly will guide the candidates. Davis, La Follette and, no doubt, Coolidge also, believe that the welfare of the country requires that the issue be taken out of politics. That is why La Follette and Davis have spoken in unqualified terms at the opening of the campaign. That is why Davis is urging Coolidge to do likewise.

at $6,000 a year and another at $4,200.

A special act with reference to the solicitor of the city provides that he shall be paid not less than $10,000 annually, the exact amount of the compensation being left to the discretion of the county commission. It is generally understood that the salary will be fixed at $10,000. The assistant solicitor of the city, "shall be paid not less than $5,000," the bill sets out, and salaries of other employees of this department will be fixed by the commission.

Officials Netted $182,205.92.
Gross fees of more than half a million dollars were received by seven Fulton county officials during the fiscal year recently closed, officials netting $182,205.92, an average of more than $26,000 each, according to figures in the office of Comptroller General William A. Wright.

These figures bear out the claim made in recent referendum campaign by Fulton county that the county's $100,000 could be saved yearly under the salary system, as it is not believed probable that the county will employ as many deputies as some of the officials now retain.

The report of the comptroller general, prepared for the recent session of the general assembly, covers the second, third and fourth quarters of 1923 and the first quarter of 1924. Reports for all four quarters are on record for all officials except the tax collector, who apparently filed no report for the second quarter of 1923. The reports for the four quarters show gross fees of $498,500.58, with the record for the three months in the tax collector's office not included.

Clerk Leads List.
With gross fees of $146,200.31, and a net income of $57,215.37 for the four quarters, Armon Royles, clerk of Fulton superior court, heads the list in both gross fees and net revenue. The quarterly receipts ranged from $21,924.78 to $22,634.72.

Roy Dorsey, solicitor of the criminal court of Atlanta, came next in net revenues, his reports for the four quarters showing gross receipts of $63,320.72 and expenses of $34,026.77. Net revenues for nine months are given at $29,293.95. W. H. Abbott, tax receiver, John A. Boykin, solicitor general of the Fulton superior court, and Thomas H. Jeffries, ordinary, were closely bunched for the next place in revenues.

Boykin Is Fourth.
Fourth in order came Solicitor Boykin with total fees of $31,025.60, and net revenues of $18,725.03. Tax Receiver Abbott did not file quarterly reports, but submitted an annual report showing receipt of $17,770.73, his net revenues being $12,255.73. Ordinary Jeffries reported collections of $31,200.00 and expenses of $15,172.38.

972, leaving net revenues of $15,234.00 for the year.

Sheriff James I. Lowry's reports for the four quarters show total fees of $16,232.41, and expenses of $112,535.04, leaving a net income of $8,718.37. Fees include board for prisoners at the Fulton tower and expenses include their upkeep.

10-YEAR-OLD BOY, VICTIM OF AUTO

The negro girl was injured at Martin street and East Georgia avenue while at play with other children in the street. She ran into the side of the automobile of C. E. Wells, police reports show. Wells is employed by a local parking house.

Mrs. Girardeau, at first thought to have been seriously injured, is under the care of the family physician. Information from the home late Friday night was to the effect that she was not dangerously hurt, and was resting comfortably.

William stopped his machine after striking Mrs. Girardeau and carried her home in his car. Police reports state that he was running "against a red light" signal at the time of the accident, and that he struck an automobile just before he hit Mrs. Girardeau.

WOMAN HURT IN FALL OFF RUNNING BOARD.
Mrs. E. R. Dillard, of 22 East Thirtieth street, narrowly escaped a serious injury early Friday night when she was thrown from the running board of an automobile.

The car, which was driven by R. W. Waters, of the same address, became stalled on Seventeenth street near Peachtree. It was reported, and when Mrs. Dillard attempted to shove it off, it started up suddenly and shot forward. When she attempted to board it she was hurled violently against the pavement, her head striking the curb. She was treated at Grady hospital, and her condition was declared to be not serious.

Eleven persons, tried in recorder's court Friday afternoon, paid fines aggregating $224. Of the number arrested before the recorder, five were charged with reckless driving; five with speeding, and one with violation of traffic regulations.

Police docketed 47 new traffic cases during the day, fifteen charging violations of traffic ordinances, including speeding, and twenty reckless driving.

NO TRACES FOUND OF ITALIAN PILOT

Raleigh and Barry are conducting the search through the dangerous waters. Meanwhile, the American fliers are waiting at Fredericksburg for favorable weather for their next jump to Ivigtut, the last stop before the jump to the North American mainland.

Three Crises on Search.
"No news of Locatelli. Fliers encountered thick weather after leaving last station ship, 217 miles off Cape Farewell. Now awaiting better weather," Richmond, Raleigh, Barry searching."

This brief message tells the story of hardship and danger which the fliers encountered on the long jump. Locatelli was handicapped by a heavier plane and may have been forced to land in some isolated inlet along the coast. But whether he has landed safely and is now making his way to some settlement, or whether he went down in the Atlantic, may not be known for some time. Major Martin, who started as chief of the American squadron, was lost for days in the Alaskan ice fields, but finally made his way to a settlement. Despite the absence of word from the Italian flier, air service officials here are hoping that if mishap befell him, he, like Martin, will escape and appear later.

An additional dispatch was received by the Italian embassy from the Richmond, reporting that the search for Locatelli was being hindered by bad weather.

Weather Is Hampering.
"Hampered by unpleasant, thick weather," this message read. "Four planes from Richmond and Raleigh will start when visibility permits. No major Magruder lending every possible assistance. Fog continues. Sea rough."

"Communication between the cruiser lookouts and the navy department has been slow. The United News dispatch Thursday night, announcing the arrival of the two Americans in Greenland, was based on direct official dispatches and other press dispatches, and it was through this message that the navy first learned of the safe arrival after the hazardous jump.

MAJOR MARTIN DECLARES FLIGHT IS WONDERFUL.
Bellingham, Wash., August 22.—Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the United States army around-the-world aerial armada before his flag plane, Seattle, crashed into a mountain on the Alaska peninsula 100 miles from Chicago, putting him out of the flight, declared that the flight today of the American aviators from Iceland to Greenland was "wonderful."

"I am glad to hear that their troubles with the ice floes are nearly over," said Major Martin.

WASHINGTON OFFICIALLY ADVISED OF ARRIVAL.
Washington, August 22.—The army air service was officially advised tonight that the American world fliers had reached Greenland.

The information was contained in a message from the cruiser Milwaukee, which said that Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian aviator who started from Iceland with the Americans on their 225-day hop, when in the head of, was preceding the Americans by 40 minutes.

The dispatch, which was undated, was signed by Lieutenant Bissell, of the army air service, and was filed by way of Louisville, Nova Scotia. It said:

"Smith and Nelson (the American aviators) arrived safely at Fredericksdal. Nothing definite from Locatelli, who when last heard from was preceding our planes by 40 minutes. Details later."

The brief dispatch was read eagerly by officers, although the safe arrival of the Americans in Greenland had long been known from press dispatches.

During the day, a dispatch was received by way of London from Lieutenant Marschall, of the Italian navy, on board the cruiser Richmond, to the air attaché of the Italian embassy here, reporting no word had been received from Lieutenant Locatelli.

Officers remained on duty here tonight, as they had continuously since the aviators took off from Iceland, hoping to receive further advice concerning the lost Italian aviator and plans of the Americans for continuing their flight.

PARTY OF ESKIMOS TO HUNT LOCATELLI.
Aboard U. S. S. Lawrence, August 2.—A party of Eskimos is being organized to search for Lieutenant Locatelli, the lost Italian aviator, and his three companions between Cape Farewell, at the southern tip of Greenland, and Ivigtut. The Danish steamer, Island Falk, already is aiding in the search for the Italian.

A message from Lieutenant Smith received aboard the Lawrence says that reports have reached Fredericksdal that natives heard the purr of a plane 30 minutes after the last of the two American fliers had landed.

MOB STORMS COURT TO HEAR DARROW

bound. It was the Darrow of old who was speaking, the apostle of many a lost cause, the savior of many a forlorn hope, his eyes.

But in this case Darrow was trying to save from hanging two rich men's sons who confessed killing the son of a friend and neighbor to collect $10,000 ransom. It was no stereotyped speech that Darrow was making. Even he did not know when he started what he was going to say.

During one of his great emotional dimaxes, Darrow quoted one of Emerson's poems, "The Culpit," and quoted it in such a way that he made many weep. He even wept a little himself.

In a voice quivering with emotion and pathos, all the poignancy that a great actor-lawyer knew how to employ, Darrow closed:

"Oh, let not man remember
The soul that God forgot;
But fetch the curtain swiftly
And noose me in a knot,
And I will rot."

"And so the game is ended,
That should not have begun,
My father and my mother
They had a likely son—
And I have none."

Absolute Silence Prevails.
Except for the sobs of women and a few emotionally inclined men, the courtroom was still and there was not a whisper of conversation anywhere. Even the newspapermen were quiet.

Loeb was looking at his defender with an exceedingly thoughtful and speculative expression. Leopold had tears in his eyes.

Jacob Franks, father of the murdered boy, was regarding the chief defense counsel with a stern and angry look. He was not swayed by this dramatic appeal for mercy for the two youths who showed his boy no mercy.

A prosecution says "give them the same mercy that they gave Robert Franks," Darrow exclaimed.

"For God's sake, if the state in which I live is not finer, not more intelligent than the mad acts of these two boys, then I am sorry I have lived so long," he added.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe was an interesting picture, while Darrow was speaking. He alternated between grins and indignant glances at his opponent.

Darrow seemed to characterize the slaying of Robert Franks in a way that astonished the courtroom.

"Here was the senseless act of immature and diseased children, floundering around in the dark," he claimed as he flung his head, braced back his shoulders and pounded his fists on the desk before him.

"There is no sort of a question but that these boys are mentally diseased," he continued. "This case only can be accounted for on the theory of mental disease."

"This is a senseless, useless, purposeless act of two boys—two children. There wasn't a particle of hate, there wasn't a depravity, there wasn't a grain of malice, there wasn't even an effort to be cruel, except that death is cruel. There was no reason, no motive at all, and yet the state's attorney says that it was the most terrible crime that ever happened."

"Why, if your honor should hang these boys, you only would be doing it because the voice of the mob is crying for them to hang."

"I hate killing. I always have hated it, no matter how it's done, whether it's with a chisel or with the noose."

Money Hurts Case.
"The almost unheard-of publicity in this case, the fact that day after day the people of this country have been regaled with harrowing nonsense about this crime, the fact that everybody has formed an opinion—this makes a difficult situation," he said. "These people think of only one thing, only one punishment, and that is death. It was announced that millions of dollars were being spent to save these boys. That is absurd and untrue. No excessive amount of money has been spent in the defense."

"They said that if the boys failed to hang it would be on account of money. Why, if we fail in this case, it will be on account of money?"

"I insist that had this been a case where the two boys did not happen to be connected with families of great wealth, there is not a state's attorney who would not have consented to life imprisonment on a plea of guilty. We would have had no such contest. We are here with the lives of two boys imperiled, with the public aroused."

Discusses Robert Franks.
Darrow started then to talk about Robert Franks, about how he was killed and the probable degree of suffering he experienced. It was another harrowing moment for Jacob Franks, who leaned forward with his eyes glued on the chief defense counsel, every without a reason, an act without an acting that he was not moved by the plea for mercy.

"Bobby Franks suffered very little," Darrow went on. "He probably never knew what happened to him. 'I'm sorry for the poor boy, and I'm sorry for his parents. But it's done. Mr. Savage said that if the Franks boy had lived, he would have grown to manhood.'"

"The fact is that we don't know whether he would or not. He was only 14 years old."

"Your honor, it's simply silly for the state to ask that these boys hang on the ground that this was a cold-blooded and vicious murder, the worst crime in history. Why they said the motive was to get $10,000. Neither one of these boys needed any money."

"On a certain day they killed poor little Bobby Franks and they want to hang these boys on the theory that they did it for money. It was a crime without a reason, an act without an explanation, save in the diseased mind of the children. For that's what they are. Just diseased children."

"Loeb and Leopold had been raised in luxury. They had never been denied anything. Yet they murdered a poor little boy against whom they had nothing in the world, without malice and without reason."

Only Senseless Act.
"If there was no motive except the senseless act of immature children, then there was no depth of depravity," Darrow continued. "And yet we have the state's lawyers demanding that these boys die and denouncing this crime as cruel."

Darrow devoted the first portion of his speech to a savage denunciation of the state's attorney for demanding that the slayers hang.

"Why? Because their families have money. For no other reason."

Darrow declared that to hang the boys would be against precedent. He said there had been only one case in Illinois in ten years where defendants of immature years, after pleading guilty, were hanged.

"I have heard in the last month nothing but the cry for blood," he said, "and I have heard precedents quoted which would be a disgrace to a savage race."

Wants Lives Saved.
"My friends, Mr. Savage, said we pleaded guilty because we did not know anything else to do. We believe we have been fair to this court. We do not want these boys released. We are asking this court to save their lives."

"We did plead guilty because we were afraid to submit our cause to a poisoned jury."

"Why, these lawyers want these boys to hang and if they do hang, it will be because there is no responsibility in this court."

"I know of 90 human beings who have hanged in the city of Chicago and these lawyers tell us that we would not have any civilization unless the number is increased to 92."

"Why, I would have been untrue to my God if I had submitted this case to a jury. It would be an unheard-of thing if these boys should be sentenced to death."

Victims of Mental Disease.
"They call this crime cruel, cowardly, dastardly, vicious, the worst in history. Why, these boys are just children, victims of mental disease. Here's Dick, 18, and Here's Nathan, 19. Here are the three officers watching them. They have no chance to escape. They are penned in."

"And for some lawyer, with physiological eloquence to wave his fists in front of them and say that they were cowardly, that doesn't seem very brave to me."

When court recessed until Saturday morning, Darrow seemed worn out. As he expressed it, he had not really "gotten under way." He will talk all of Saturday morning and probably finish at the close of court Monday afternoon.

Walter Bachrach concluded his argument for the defense at the close of the morning session Friday. When Darrow finishes next Monday, Benjamin Bachrach will begin the closing argument for the defense. Then State's Attorney Crowe will make the last plea, a plea that the slayers of Robert Franks hang.

"The case probably will end next Thursday or Friday, Justice Caverly may not announce his decision until the following week."

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Whose "Black Sunday" Anyway?

Premier Herriot returned to France after the London conference and was given a riotous reception. "A step toward world peace has been made," he announced to the cheering and enthusiastic crowds.

He added that he would prove to his hand that he had not been forced in London and that he would prove to his hand that he had not been forced in London and that he would prove to his hand that he had not been forced in London.

Everything was above board. The Premier had been in operation and the European political horizon has been cleared. What M. Poincare could not accomplish with his bayonets and vindictive Sunday sermons has been achieved in a round-table conference with reason and common sense were the chief guests and a will to peace animated all participants.

So in the American newspapers M. Poincare is pleased to call May 13, the day of Herriot's party's victory, "Black Sunday." It is now a round-table conference with reason and common sense were the chief guests and a will to peace animated all participants.

Not France, not Europe, but Poincare. The result of the London conference repudiates and discredits his theory on the road to the election victory of the liberals.

The republican party is on trial. The American voters constitute the jury.

Democracy shows way. Premier Herriot returning from the London conference was received by a tumultuous, almost riotous crowd of admirers. This was not one of these so-called superficial French demonstrations. It was a tribute of genuine and well-deserved praise and approbation.

M. Herriot has accomplished something and he has accomplished it in the face of tremendous obstacles, not the least of which was the opposition of Senator Raymond Poincare with the solid bloc national at his back. They ridiculed Herriot. They said he would fall in the English trap. They said his hand would be forced and he would be the bidding of "perfidious Albion."

There was one thing they forgot and that was that the English trap did not exist. Premier MacDonald was not out to catch any unwary Frenchman. He and Herriot both had the will to peace, the will to understanding and the necessary liberal sentiment to convince the Germans that they were not forcing an agreement down their throats against the will of the German people.

Herriot and MacDonald gave the round table conference method of diplomacy a try-out. They gave democratic procedure a chance and to the ever-increasing astonishment and chagrin of M. Poincare, the method proved effective.

What M. Poincare had not been able to accomplish with all his bombastic Sunday speeches, which bristled with bayonets and machine guns, was achieved in a spirit of toleration and conciliation. For the new thought in Europe has since long strayed away from the untenable position that Germany alone was responsible for the war. No longer is it believed that the progressive German nation suddenly turned into a horde of murderers, but that they no less than the Russians, the French and the Austrians were the victims of an Imperialist policy of greed and cut-throatism, which inevitably led to the slaughter.

There was another thing. When Mr. Wilson went to France he told the German people that America was not fighting the German people, but the outworn system of autocracy of which Germany was the chief exponent. Germany at once threw off the yoke of kaiserism. And Germany did this before she was defeated on the field of battle. It matters not that strategists affirm that Germany would have been defeated in the end.

Anxiously the groups of liberals and republicans in the new German republic scanned the horizon. True they also followed a mistaken policy during the war, deluded as they were by kaiserism. They expected that France and the other democratic nations of the entente would approve of their decision, their conversion, and bring them within the family circle of democracy.

This was not done. M. Poincare treated the democracy of Germany as if it were identical with the old regime. Misunderstood abroad, with rancorous enemies within, both royalists and reds, the German republic has survived and will for the first time be able to show its adherents the results of peaceful democracy.

The London conference has cleared the air. MacDonald and Herriot have shown they understand the situation in Germany. M. Poincare's policy is discredited and repudiated. The new leaders do not minimize Germany's war guilt, but neither do they over-estimate it. That is as it should be. The Germans, realizing the crime for which they were partly responsible, want to work out their own salvation. If they are sincere, they should be given the chance.

Why is a railroad crossing and a deaf and blind auto-driver?

It isn't different with the almanac. They "know how to fly, but not how to light."

Still, even campaign speeches by radio may not succeed in putting one over on the people.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

New York, August 22.—Broadway calls them "fadeouts." They refer to the former beauties of the stage who are being shunted to the background—clipped by age or fading beauty. Every call has their sprinkling of them nightly.

For the Broadway lights are the lights that never grow dim. They are always shining. There is one who is used to twinkle in the front row. One night there was a Westchester joy ride and a smash-up and she left the hospital with a deep scar on her cheek.

There is another, still in her twenties, whose beauty withered under the heat of a noted revue. And her last engagement was in a Seventh avenue cabaret. She affects a long white dress and a high collar. The world that once acclaimed her.

Nothing is so tragic to them as to lose the glare of the spotlight. They fight strenuously to retain their beauty and their place in the world. They are like prize fighters who never believe they are through.

Higher calls are beauty and youth. Each is usually ravaged in a minute of dissipation. When they lose beauty they find themselves hopeless. They are like prize fighters who never believe they are through.

So in the American newspapers M. Poincare is pleased to call May 13, the day of Herriot's party's victory, "Black Sunday." It is now a round-table conference with reason and common sense were the chief guests and a will to peace animated all participants.

DEATH OF CONNOR KNIGHT DEFENSE PLANS DECLARED SEEKING REECTION NOW BEING RUSHED

Ill health is blamed for the death of J. M. Connor, 72-year-old retired railroad shopman, whose lifeless body was found on a bench in Grant park near the handstand, Friday morning with a bullet wound through the left breast.

A coroner's jury this morning will investigate the death at the chapel of Harry G. Poole, where the body was removed. Police report it as suicide.

The condition of the body, at the time it was discovered by C. M. Keith, of 384 Oakland avenue, indicated that Connor had been dead for at least three or four days.

Connor was a well-known figure in the neighborhood. He was a retired railroad shopman and was known for his friendly nature. He was found on a bench in Grant park near the handstand, Friday morning with a bullet wound through the left breast.

COOLIDGE SILENT UPON KLAN ISSUE

Plymouth, August 22.—President Coolidge declined Friday night to comment on the challenge issued to him on the Ku Klux Klan question by John W. Davis in his speech at Seattle, N. J.

Secretary Sloop informed the president of Davis' speech condemning the Klan and suggesting that Coolidge make plain his attitude on that subject. Sloop advised the president of the speech after he had waited a digest of it at Woodstock, 12 miles from here.

After taking the speech to the president, Sloop told newspapermen later that Mr. Coolidge had nothing to say. Final settlement of the question of the Klan, with the putting into operation of the Dawes plan, is regarded by the president as the most important step to be taken in the adjustment of world affairs.

World Court Second.

Even the establishment of a world court, desirable as it has been considered by the administration, is secondary to the reparations settlement, in the president's opinion. That was officially made known Friday by the president's spokesman at a conference with newspapermen here.

The codification of international law, it was said, is considered next in importance in the field of international relations.

No particular plans for the president's participation in the campaign have been made known, other than that he will speak in Washington and Baltimore during the next two weeks.

Interview Over Store.

The conference at which the president's views were made known was held in a bare room over the Plymouth general store. Newspapermen and photographers jammed the small room and the sun beat down unmercifully on the roof overhead.

Bascom Sloop, John Coolidge and the president's father stood in the rear. No general tariff revision is being considered and the stimulus to American manufacturers resulting from increased world trade is not expected by the president to mature unless it has tariff protection which will maintain the American standard of living.

Regarding the defense program planned for September 12, it was made clear that the president looks upon it as much a test of the war department's ability to conduct the affair in harmony with the civil authorities as a test to swell the ranks of the army for an emergency.

Lowell observatory here the last two nights, possibly may be snow, E. C. Slipher, photographic expert at the observatory, said today.

The spots covered an area of about 10,000 square miles, appearing on the bright-colored areas of the planet, defined as desert regions by astronomers, Mr. Slipher said.

Observations last night disclosed that the spots were located in exactly the same positions as on the previous night, the scientist declared.

"They differ from cloud spots because the latter seem to drift from night to night, slowly between fixed points," Mr. Slipher said.

QUEER RADIO SIGNALS
HEARD AT NORFOLK.

Norfolk, Va., August 22.—Queer radio signals were picked up here today. As to whether they had any connection with the visit of the planet Mars or were merely a coincidence, local wireless experts would not venture an opinion.

Just before 1 o'clock, and shortly after government sending stations had broadcast orders to all naval receiving stations to be on the alert for any possible Martian messages, B. A. Mabry and B. G. Cowan, in charge of the powerful receiving set in the office of the chief dispatcher of the Atlantic Coast Line railway, picked up a message unlike anything they had ever heard.

The message was not in any known code and the tone was described as "distant and warbling like a far-away train whistle." As near as they could make out, the radio men said, the signals corresponded to Morse code, but was composed of a queer mixture of dots and dashes. It continued for about 15 minutes.

The railway set, one of the most powerful in this section, was tuned in at 2,300 meters. Both Mabry and Cowan are veteran operators.

STRANGE NOISES
HEARD IN LONDON.

London, August 23.—(By The Associated Press.)—An attempt by British wireless experts to "listen in" on Mars resulted in strange noises being heard at 1 o'clock this morning. The source of the noises could not be ascertained by the experts.

Tuning in started at 12:30 o'clock a. m. and at 1 a. m. on a 30,000-meter radius, sounds were heard which could not be identified as "coming from an earthly station."

The sounds were like harsh dots, but they could not be interpreted as Morse code. The noises continued on and off for three minutes in groups of four and five dots.

JUST SPECULATION.
SAY HARVARD MEN.

Cambridge, Mass., August 22.—"All this speculation about what's going on on Mars is just speculation, nothing more. Some of it is so wide of our knowledge of Mars as to be absurd."

This is what astronomers at Harvard university are saying, and despite all the fuss over the ancient planet, which is now moving along parallel to us, 14,000,000 miles nearer than its usual distance.

"Mars is not near enough now, and probably never will be as long as the present laws of the universe sustain. To learn anything very definite about it," said Dr. Leon Campbell, of the Harvard astronomical laboratory.

"It is no more probable that there is life on Mars than that there is life on a comet, or, for that matter, in our keeping with our knowledge of the earth."

MYSTERIOUS SIGNALS
HEARD BY SCIENTIST.

London, August 23.—Signals which he claims could not have originated on the earth, and which may have come from an "outside source," have been received by Norman Edwards, editor of an English magazine devoted to the science of radio communication.

Edwards announces that three minutes before Greenwich meridian time, Friday, he heard an irregular series of long dots in alternate groups of four and five. He was attempting to intercept signals from Mars when the strange series of long dots was heard. Edwards used a 24-valve receiving set.

"It was a series of long dots heard at irregular intervals," Edwards told the United States. "Each group consisted of four to five dots followed by irregular periods of silence."

"These sounds did not come from this earth. I am certain of that. I am also convinced that they were not atmospheric phenomena. There is no station anywhere in the world transmitting on the wave length of these signals, and even if there were such a station, it would not send such dots at such peculiar intervals. Furthermore, the dots came out of a complete silence and were followed by a similar lack of sound. Clearly these signals did not originate on the earth."

RADIO COMMUNICATION.
"ABSOLUTE NONSENSE."

Winningham, August 22.—Attempts to establish radio communication with Mars were characterized as "absolute nonsense" by Professor A. S. Eddington, Cambridge university astronomer. Professor Eddington is one of the British scientists now touring the west.

"The whole thing is too absurd for words," he said. "Even if Mars was inhabited and the people could understand our signals, there is no possibility of crossing the vast space between the atmosphere of the two great planets. Sound waves circle within the earth's atmosphere and cannot pierce its bounds."

Scientists know enough about Mars to convince them that human life, as the earth knows it, is out of the question. Although the climatic conditions are temperate, the planet has been so burned up for many thousands of years that no serious person can imagine the existence of animal life of any form."

tionists to withdraw their opposition to the adoption of the machinery to effectuate the Dawes report, the cabinet has voted to introduce a bill to the effect of an agrarian protective tariff. This is a measure long demanded by the nationalists.

Members of the government are confident President Ebert will not be forced to dissolve the Reichstag and order new elections, although the socialists have announced they would have a dissolution vote independently next week.

If the situation relative to the Dawes report becomes aggravated to the extent that a dissolution appears imminent, the cabinet plans to withdraw the bill, which would approve the London agreement, and to concentrate on efforts to push through the banking and industrial mortgages laws agreed upon at London. These latter laws require only a plurality vote for adoption.

The railway legislation proposed at London was a two-thirds vote and it is planned also to shelve that bill, if necessary, to avoid dissolution and new elections.

Excited Session Held.

Tremendous public excitement marked Friday's session of the Reichstag at which Chancellor Marx was to have made his statement justifying his actions at the London conference. Every spectator's seat was filled and the diplomatic loges were more crowded than they have been in months, when Marx rose to tell the Reichstag what he had done.

A communist member leaped to his feet following for amnesty for all political prisoners. Others rose with him and the extreme left of the chamber was standing. The speaker for amnesty rose higher and the sentences of Marx's opening paragraph were lost. The chancellor tried to go on, but it was no use.

President Wallraf ordered a 20-minute recess during which the communist speaker was removed. Marx and other members of the cabinet tried to gain the attention of the Reichstag at the end of the recess, but the bellows of the communists continued. Finally, Wallraf became disgusted and again summoned police and declared a further recess.

Throughout the day, the police were in touch with the Reichstag and the speaker was taken to prevent disturbances.

May Evacuate Sooner.

Blum's remarks in the chamber provided foundation for the rumor that Herriot intends to evacuate the Ruhr before the expiration of a year if Germany shows good faith in meeting her obligations.

"Evacuation will depend upon Germany," Blum said. "I believe I may safely say that the Ruhr will be evacuated simultaneously with the Cologne bridge-head."

Herriot denied that he had imperiled the safety of France. "The parties upon whom this government is relying are profoundly dispirited of maintaining France's security. It was unanimously decided to continue the work of disarming Germany, but there are two Germans. We are disarming the old Germany in order to permit the new Germany to live."

Deputy Dupuy assailed Herriot for not bargaining the withdrawal of the French troops against concessions regarding inter-allied debts.

"You let substance go for shadow," Dupuy shouted.

Herriot replied that there were many diplomatic tricks he might have used had he wished to do so, but that he refused to resort to trickery. "It would be a mistake," he said, to think that the occupation of the Ruhr would have aided in getting concessions on debts.

Davidson Back After Trip To Battlefields of France

James P. Davidson, editor of the Cleveland Courier, of Cleveland, Ga., recently returned from Europe, where, as Georgia's representative, he completed with 15 other ex-service men the initial "World's War Veterans' Tour" of the battlefields of France. The tour was arranged by the U. S. Steamship lines, the Georgia society of New York has arranged a tour of France at a minimum cost, for the benefit of all ex-service men.

Mr. Davidson was appointed by Governor Clifford Walker to represent Georgia on the first tour, and he made the trip as the guest of the Georgia society.

The idea of the tour was conceived by R. M. Bryan, editor of the New York Black Diamond, while he was en route to Europe almost a year ago. He communicated with the United States lines, which by cable, and as a result several months later, the steamship company offered to give any ex-service man the trip at the small cost of $275.

In view of the fact that Mr. Bryan is a former Georgian, and a member of the Georgia society, the society offered to defray the expenses of a Georgian man on the initial trip. Mr. Davidson's appointment followed.

The party sailed from New York on the "America" July 12, and after arriving in France was taken in charge by V. W. O'Hara, an official of the United States company. Headquarters were established in Paris, and a tour of the fields, covering several days was made.

During their stay in Paris the Americans were royally entertained by a number of organizations there, also attended the Olympic games. The management of the newspaper "Le Matin," of Paris, entertained the visitors at a reception, shortly after their arrival, and they also were guests of the Paris American Legion.

Several other tours will be conducted on the same plan up until December, or as long as a sufficient number of men take advantage of the offer. The tour, which has been named the "World's War Veterans' Tour," offers practically everything a visitor to France could desire in the way of entertainment and sight-seeing.

and introduced her formally to the audience.

"Atlanta is world famous as the beauty center of all the earth," the mayor declared. "And to have been named as the prettiest girl of all the thousands of Atlanta beauties is probably the highest honor that could come to any girl."

Wherever the luxurious Franklin placed at Miss Atlanta's disposal by the Atlanta Franklin Motor Car company stopped on the street during the day a crowd immediately gathered about it.

"Miss Atlanta" Goes Shopping.

"Miss Atlanta" spent Friday afternoon shopping in the downtown district. She spent some time in the "Flower-in-the-Bottle" perfume shop in the Connally building, where the manager selected for her use at the national pageant and at home an elaborate set of toiletries of all kinds.

At the same time "Miss Atlanta" was presented with a beautiful costume chain of imported beads hand made by Miss Susan McClellan, widely-known Atlanta artist, craftsman and a writer of national prominence on arts and crafts.

This morning "Miss Atlanta" will again visit the studio of Martin Amoroso, Jr., famous young southern designer and style authority, who is creating a set of gorgeous gowns for her to wear before the judges in the national pageant events. Mr. Amoroso announced Friday that "Miss Atlanta's" traveling gown is rapidly nearing completion, and he added that this and her evening gown probably would be completed early next week.

Design Afternoon Gown.

Work of design on her afternoon gown will immediately follow, and the entire wardrobe will be finished some days before "Miss Atlanta's" departure for Atlantic City on September 1.

A new honor paid "Miss Atlanta" was announced Friday when Stuart E. Baskin, director of the Atlanta School of Stage Arts, announced that he wished to give the little beauty queen a complete course in dramatics following her return from Atlantic City. "I have known 'Miss Atlanta' for a year or more," said Mr. Baskin, "and I have been intensely interested in her, not only on account of her striking beauty, but because of her native talent for dramatic acting."

"I followed the progress of 'The Constitution's' tournament quite closely, and I was delighted at Miss Bradley's victory. I believe she has a brilliant future before her, and my school will gladly contribute its bit to that future."

New York, A Genaro, flyweight United States, won over Hilly Levine, of his career, holding the Little Rock Travelers to three scattered hits, while the Crackers won the first contest of the "B-game" series 4 to 0, at Spillers' park.

For four and two-thirds innings the Travelers were held hitless and jinxed McLaughlin by inducing which he had given up a hit. Lory promptly smashed a clean bingle to right field, shattering any aspirations for no-hit fame that had been flirting with the Crackers.

The only member of the Little Rock outfit managed to reach third during the course of the afternoon. This happened in the ninth inning. This happened were out. Guyon doubled to left. McLaughlin hit to Smith, who rushed the ball in an effort to tag Guyon on his way to third, but let it get away from him. However, Moore, who had been sent later on Brock's high.

Crackers Score Again.

Another was added in the fifth after two men were down. Paschal walked and stole second. Burrus beat out a hit to third, advancing Paschal to third. Michael's throw was wide and Paschal scored.

The final count came in the sixth. Kreimeyer was hit by a pitched ball and took third on a single to left. Good lifted a sacrifice fly to Lory, and Kreimeyer scored.

The game to date is slaved for today, is some doubt just a week. The effort will use, while Elberfeld has now enjoyed his batteries. The teams resume the battle of Sunday, but will be played Tuesday.

Wilbur Goode made the feature catch of the day by climbing the right field bank to snag Philbin's terrific line in the ninth inning. The Crackers had a couple of bobbles in the afternoon to mar their fielding record, while the Travelers had a trio which proved costly.

Although the Crackers managed to hit McCall in the early innings, not a single run was pushed across until after the fourth inning. Burrus doubled in Smith field, Guyon hit Niehoff single, scoring Burrus, and Paschal came through in the throw in. Krehmeyer sent a single through short, but Niehoff

Feather Title

Tampa, Fla., August 22.—“Boots” Antley retained his mythical southern featherweight title here tonight by winning seven out of the 10 rounds in his fight with P.

to fight 12 rounds at Benjamin Field. The Georgia boy had his long right working like lightning, and kept Hickey off with it most of the time. In the second, third and seventh Hickey opened up and slugged and took those three by a good margin. Antley showed him more gloves than he had ever seen in any other fights that he has been in. Neither was in distress at any time. Hickey was stronger and more rugged than Antley, and took all that came his way.

MAXSON PUBLISHING CO.

The Bard's Determination.
Dear Reader:
You will never need to glare at me anxious,
for you will never catch me dead in homopathic pants.
I've written rhymes, oh, many a score of glad ones, sad and bad, but no one's ever seen me yet in knickerbockers clad.
Were I arrayed in knickers, short by Fashion's stern decree, I'd surely give myself away for all the world to see.
For when I strive to stand upright in conscious rectitude
My limbs are bowed like callipers, a shameful attitude.
My legs are like a wishbone arched,
and captious critics say I couldn't stop a porker in the straight and narrow way.
So I declare in thunder tones the world will get no chance To have a laugh at seeing me in short and sudden pants.
Tennyson J. Daft.

An Even Break.
"They say that when a man is single he misses the best things in life," remarked the Professor.
"Yes," chuckled the Cynic, "but when he's married, he pays for them."
Esther Adams.

How About It?
Ethel—"Father is so innocent an unsuspecting."
May—"How is that?"
Ethel—"Why, when we tell each other what a nice 'Daddy' we have, he thinks we are talking about him."
Mrs. Edith O'Brien.

Absent Minded.
First Lord—"Heavens! The prince was thrown from his horse again, and him traveling 'incognito' too."
Second Lord—"Well, I always said
you couldn't fool a horse."
John Laughlin, Jr.

Making History.
Greggs—"This fellow Weston is great on pedigreed stock, isn't he?"
Briggs—"Is he? Why, he can trace his cattle clear back to the 'Battle of Bull Run'."
Mrs. Alma E. Henderson.

The Poet's Mistake.
My curse on the poet
That wrote that blamed motto—
"Look up at the stars,
And not down at the stones."
Egosh. When I did
What the fool said I ought to
I tripped on a pebble.
And shattered by bones.
(Miss) Maurine Hathaway.

Hens, Take Notice!
Ted, just home from Sunday school, where his teacher had been explaining the Ten Commandments, looked disapprovingly at a cackling hen that was proudly calling attention to a freshly laid egg.
Finally the little boy asked sternly:
"Don't you know it's wicked to lay an egg on Sunday?"
Caroline E. Vose.

A Bargain.
A local attorney had just brought to a close a successful defense of an old negro named Rastus, who had been charged with chicken stealing.
The lawyer and his client were conversing.
Rastus—"Well, boss, I ain't got no money, but I reckon I've got to pay you."
Lawyer (seeking to have a little fun)—"Well, Rastus, do you reckon you can steal me a few chickens?" Rastus—(moving up closer to lawyer)—"Well, boss, is you sho' you can el'ae me again?"
John Cunningham.

A Story of the Deep Sea.
"That was a thrilling rescue of those Boston fishermen the other day," said a my friend, Dr. Tranrock. "It reminded me of a similar experience of my own."
"I had gone out with some Newfoundland cod-fishermen, my main object being to get rid of hay-fever. I took my regular turn in a dory with a grunted old Frenchman, Pierre Toucheques. In a white fog we missed our schooner. When the fog lifted, she was nowhere to be seen."

"This did not alarm us, as we often missed the boat, so to speak, and we kept on, kidding and kidding, for four days, gradually using up our limited ration of biscuit and water. The end of the sixth day found us in real distress. Pierre began to eye me with an evil look, and I realized that it would be a case of him or me before very long. It was absolutely necessary that I get a supply of fresh water. I did this in a way I had learned in the desert, namely, by condensation.
"Dipping my shirt in the sea, I whirled it rapidly about my head. This lowered the temperature of the water in its folds. This cold saltwater I quickly squeezed into our metal container. The great difference in temperature immediately produced condensation. Drops of pure fresh water were literally sucked out of the atmosphere. I scraped these from the can with my knife and soon had a cupful. From a savage animal, Pierre became an adoring dog who fawned
at my feet."

"On the next day, as I was chewing a splinter from the gunwale, I made the happy discovery that our dory was built of slippery elm, so that we existed on this simple fare of slippery-elm and water for four days more, when we were picked up by the steamer, Bubonic. The passengers got up a purse for us, over a thousand dollars, which I gave to Pierre. He has since made a practice of getting picked up at sea at least once every season, and I understand he is doing quite well at it."

then he has been eating in a one-arm lunch, and has got curvature of the spine."
Hugh M. Heccock.

Getting the Dope on "Doc" Traprock.
Bronson Hall had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Traprock speak at a dinner.
He thinks that the worthy traveler and explorer ruined the whole occasion by truthfully confessing that his only knowledge of whaling was limited to the days when his father was the whaler and he was a cub.
This but shows the human side of our good friend.

through them. The stables were reached, and there in the doorway lay Collie, a half dozen pudgy puppies playing about her in the sun.

White Fang looked on with wondering eye. Collie snarled warningly at him, and he was careful to keep his distance. The master with his toe helped one sprawling puppy toward him. He bristled suspiciously, but the master warned him all was well. Collie, clasped in the arms of one of the women, watched him jealously and with a snarl warned him that all was not well.

The puppy sprawled in front of him. He cocked his ears and watched it curiously. Then their noses touched, and he felt the warm little tongue of the puppy on his fowl. White Fang's tongue went out, he knew not why, and he licked the puppy's face.

Hand clapping and pleased cries
from the gods greeted the performance.
He was surprised, and looked at them in a puzzled way. Then his weakness asserted itself, and he lay down, his ears cocked, his head on one side, as he watched the puppy. The other puppies came sprawling toward him, to Collie's great disgust; and he gravely permitted the mud clamber and tumble over him. At first, amid the applause of the gods, he betrayed a trifle of his old self-consciousness and awkwardness. This passed away as the puppies' quick and mauling continued, and he lay with half-shut, patient eyes, drowsing in the sun.

BEAUTY CHATS
BY EDNA K. FORBES.

PERFUMED SOAPS.

If you have a passion for very nice, delicately-scented soaps, and cannot afford to indulge in them, here are some ways of making cheap, plain soaps into something fancier. Once upon a time I saw a cake of soap for $1.50—but only once. I can't imagine what it was made of!

When the drug stores are having sales, lay in a supply of plain white castile soap, in bars, and plain white curd soap. Either kind, being "superfatted," is good in itself. But if you want color and perfume, try these suggestions:
For violet soap: Take four pounds of castile soap and three of white curd; or else take three pounds of palm olive soap, one of olive oil soap and three of white curd. Let these varieties melt together and stir in one ounce of tincture of orris root and one ounce of essence of cassia. Color to suit your taste with tincture of litmus or plain powdered indigo. A little goes a long way! Pour into tins to cool and set and cut up into nice blocks with a sharp knife. Lay aside to harden before using.

Lavender soap is easier to make.
You want plain brown Windsor soap if you can buy it nowadays, with one ounce of Mitcham oil of lavender (Mitcham, an ugly London suburb, is supposed to grow the most fragrant lavender) to every six pounds of soap, colored again with indigo or litmus.

Three pounds of castile soap, two pounds of white curd, one-quarter pint of water, one-quarter ounce of powdered vermillion is the basis of rose soap. When melted, stir in two drachms attar of roses, one of oil of cinnamon, one of oil of cloves. If you like the scent, one drachm of oil of bergamot can be put in also. The vermillion, of course, gives the rose color.

A. M. T.—Applications of buttermilk will do much to bleach off a stubborn case of tanning.
Massage hands and arms with a nourishing oil every night, to fill out your hollows.

Impatient—Your friends are correct about the cause for your outbreaks of pimples. Simplify your diet and see if this is not so.

Tinnie—Removing dandruff with a fine-toothed comb is very irritating to the scalp, and it does not improve the condition that causes the trouble.

Massage your scalp the night before the regular shampoo and use hot, crude oil. Cover head with a towel overnight to protect the bed linen from being stained. Shampoo several times to remove all oil and dandruff.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped, self-addressed envelope must be inclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Prices of Stocks Crumble Under Heavy Selling Orders

34. Baldwin and Studebaker failed

34. Baldwin and Studebaker failed to hold their early gains and closed fractionally lower.

One of the sharpest breaks took place in Colorado Fuel, which dropped more than 7 points on reports that oil drillers in the Moffat field of Colorado had struck water. Recent buying of his stock has been predicated on the possibility of oil developments in Moffat territory. Other outstanding weak spots were General Electric, Inverborough Rapid Transit, Central Leather, Chandler Motor, International Harvester, New York Dock, Railway Steel Spring, Tidewater Oil

A run-in of the short interest in Atlantic Refining sent that stock up to 92 3-4, but it eased later to 90 7-8, where it was up 3 3-8 on the day. American Water Works soared 6 points to 120 and then fell back to 115. West Penn Power closed nearly 10 points higher at 89 3-8. American Sugar Refining, American Tobacco Issues, Liggett, and Myers, Schulte, Lion Motors and Eastman Kodak were among the few issues to show net gains of a point or more.

Rails yielded with the industrials, net losses as a rule were not as large. Jersey Central broke 10 points on one sale and rallied 3 on the next, while New York Central, New Haven, Norfolk and Western, Southern Railway, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson and several others dropped a point or more.

Call money was continued to rule at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial rates held firm, but business was rather quiet.

Foreign exchanges again turned reactionary with trading extremely light. Demand sterling dropped more than a cent to below $4.50 and French francs ruled slightly above 5-3-8 cents.
